

Lima-6: A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam

LIMA-6A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam R. D. Camp, Jr. with Eric Hammel In this vividly told first-person narrative, retired Marine Colonel Dick Camp colorfully recounts the daily combat actions and command decisions of his Vietnam experience as Lima-6 the commander of Lima Company, 3rd Battalion, 26th Marines from June 1967 through January 1968. Upon his arrival in Vietnam, Captain Camp finessed his way into the immediate command of Lima Company following the death of its previous commander near Khe Sanh. Instantly, he was thrown into the tense experience of patrolling the beautiful, deadly jungle valleys around Khe Sanh and escorting supply convoys along embattled Highway 9 between Dong Ha and Khe Sanh. For six full months, Dick Camp commanded Lima Company in alternating periods of intense combat and intense waiting a typical, virtually emblematic experience shared by his peers in the 1967-1968 phase of the war in northern Quang Tri Province, bordering the DMZ and North Vietnam. In early September 1967, Camp's battalion was almost overrun near besieged Con Thien in an ambush sprung by a full North Vietnamese Army regiment. In early January 1968, Lima Company ambushed the commander and staff of a North Vietnamese regiment apparently charged with assaulting the Marine lines at Khe Sanh. Three weeks later, Lima Company and the rest of the reinforced 26th Marine Regiment were besieged inside the Khe Sanh Combat Base by two North Vietnamese divisions. As much as Lima-6 is about fighting the Vietnam War, it is also the story of the tight camaraderie of the Marine infantry company at war of men from widely disparate backgrounds thrown together to succeed or fail as a fighting force. It is a compelling human story of an infantry company at war as seen through the eyes of its commander the lonely man upon whom all others depend for guidance, wisdom, strength, and humor. An intensely frank, always human memoir, Lima-6 sets out to make no political or ideological points. It is a candid, refreshing narrative by a combat commander about the experience of command and the brotherhood of men at war. Lima-6 is, above all, an honest account of life and death at the heart of the Vietnam War. Dick Camp was a Marine infantry officer for twenty-six years. He served in a wide variety of command and staff billets, including assignments as a reconnaissance platoon commander, company commander, and recruit training battalion commander. His last assignment was at Marine Corps Headquarters, where he served as operations officer for Marine recruiting. He now lives in Northern Virginia. Eric Hammel, a military historian, has written nearly forty books, including Pacifica Military History's Fire in the Streets: The Battle for Hue, Guadalcanal: Starvation Island, Guadalcanal: Decision at Sea, Ambush Valley, and Khe Sanh: Siege in the Clouds. He lives near San Francisco. Critical Acclaim for Lima-6A solid contribution to Vietnam literature... Always readable, frequently vivid. Booklist Magazine Camp's gritty narrative is flawless as it takes the reader through six months of the Vietnam War through the eyes of an infantry officer ... a must for those who want to understand the awesome responsibility a company commander has in war. An honest portrayal. Vietnam Bookstore Book Report Solid, down to earth, and faithful in describing the way it was [for] one Marine company commander. Leatherneck An honorable and dead-honest narrative. Kirkus Reviews Camp's autobiography underscores the essential nobility often displayed by men sharing dire circumstances. Cincinnati Enquirer

Find great deals for Lima 6 : A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam by Eric Hammel and Richard D. Camp (1999, Paperback, Reprint). Shop with To Hear Silence: Charlie Battery, 1st Battalion, 13th Marines: The First 15 Months NEW

LIMA-6 : A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam..A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam Richard D. Camp, Jr., Eric Hammel actions and command decisions of his Vietnam experience as Lima 6theNote 0.0/5. Retrouvez Lima-6: A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam et des millions de livres en stock sur . Achetez neuf ou d'occasion. LIMA-6. A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam Col. R. D. Camp, Jr. with Eric Hammel In this vividly told first person narrative, Colonel Dick: Lima-6 (9780935553369): Dick Camp, Eric Hammel: Books. Lima-6: A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam and millions of other books areLima-6 has 49 ratings and 2 reviews. as Lima-6 -- the commander of Lima Company, 3rd Battalion, 26th Marines -- from June 1967 through January 1968. As much as it is about the Vietnam War, Lima-6 is also a candid account of theLima-6 A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam [Colonel R.D. (w/Eric Hammel) Camp] on . *FREE* shipping on qualifying offers.Booktopia has LIMA-6, A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam by Col R.D. Camp. Buy a discounted Paperback of LIMA-6 online from Australias leading As much as it is about the Vietnam War, Lima-6 is also a candid account of the camaraderie that a Marine infantry company forges in battle, and Eric Hammel, LIMA-6: A MARINE COMPANY COMMANDER IN VIETNAM. Culbertson, John J., A SNIPER IN THE ARIZONA: 2nd Battalion, 5th Marines, In this vivid and intensely frank memoir, retired Marine Colonel Dick Camp recounts his daily experiences as Lima-6 -- the commander of: LIMA-6: A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam: New York, 1989. First edition. First printing. Hardbound. As new in dust jacket (with tinyLIMA-6: A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam - Buy LIMA-6: A Marine Company Commander in Vietnam by camp, r. d. , camp hammelauthorIn 1967, U.S. Marine Captain Dick Camp was dropped in the field by helicopter to replace a unit commander killed in battle. Here is his searing relentlessly