

Cardinal Sins

This novel is based on the life of Pope Pius IX and is narrated by a rationalist non-believer who was a close friend and companion of Mastai-Ferrari for almost the whole of his life. The dynamics of the book arise from the conflict between theology and science at a time when scientific knowledge was expanding rapidly. The book also examines the stresses between ambition and religious faith, the problems of chastity in the priesthood and the hazards and interests of travel by sea.
